Dear Ma —

I've read Dave's story El Cibolo.

I assume that you got my recent letter* in which I explained in detail why I don't want to correspond with Dave any more except for essential purposes. So I needn't explain any further why I'm not going to write to him directly to give him my opinion of his story. But, if you like, you can pass on to him the following comments.

I thought El Cibolo was a good story What I thought Dave did especially well was evoke the emotions involved in El Cibolo's relationship with the country in which he lived and with the people who occupied it. I was very favorably impressed by this, let us say, poetic aspect of the story. The plot, to me, was of little interest — merely a framework on which to hang the evocations of nature, etc. I do have some criticisms (as you might expect of me), but I won't mention them here (other than to say that "pueblocito" should be spelled pueblecito). The criticisms, however, are much less important than the criticisms that I made of his earlier writings that I've seen. El Cibolo looks to me like a professional piece of work — I didn't detect in it any serious blunders of the kind that I've found in Dave's other writings that I've seen.

Private to you, Ma; you needn't pass the following on to Dave. Dave's earlier writings that I've seen were sprinkled here and there with linguistic blunders that, in my opinion (and, apparently, in the opinion of editors to whom he sent his work) made them unpublishable. I tried to point these out to Dave, and he did act on some of my criticisms, but he ignored others including some of the most important ones. El Cibolo is comparatively free of such blunders, and is therefore such a vast and sudden improvement on Dave's earlier work that I can think of only [redacted] to your question, yes, the librarian about whom I told the anecdote was the librarian at the Lincoln Library; and yes, I can get books from other libraries through the Lincoln library. Yes, I did receive the package you sent. Thank you very much.

You did right in not giving any information about me to those Murray Research Center twerps who called you. I am certainly not going to give them any help.

As for the doctor visit, I can't give you a complete report, because, at this writing, I haven't yet received the results of the blood tests. For the moment I can only tell you this. The doctor said the irregularities of heartbeat were probably not dangerous, but she apparently was not prepared to assert this positively. She had me run on a treadmill, taking my electrocardiogram as I did so. At the conclusion of the test she said I was "obviously in shape", i.e., in good physical training. She said my electrocardiogram looked good, but that it did show one characteristic that could be a sign of an underlying problem. However, she didn't seem to think it was much to worry about. I pointed out that being in good physical training didn't necessarily guarantee a healthy heart and mentioned the case of Hank Gathers, an athlete who dropped dead. She said yes, some people have heart problems that can cause that even if they're in excellent training, but she didn't think I had that kind of problem. She also had me undergo some blood tests to determine whether I had certain other problems that could affect the heart. The results of these tests were supposed to be mailed to me but, as I indicated above, I have not yet received them.

The examination and tests cost altogether $321.10, plus $25.00 for a round-trip bus ticket and $22.00

[redacted], so, as you can see, the $200 leaved me — surplus to return to you. I'm enclosing a copy of the bill.

You wanted me to send you some more entertaining anecdotes, but at the moment I haven't got time to write any down, because I'm very busy. It's planting time, and I have to get my garden spaded and the seeds put in. Also, I'll have to make at least one trip, and perhaps more than one trip, to Lincoln to have stitches in my neck looked at by the County Nurse to see if they're ready to take out, and to have them taken out when they're ready. You'll remember that one of the health problems that I mentioned to you in an earlier letter was a skin growth. Since I was going into Missoula anyway, I made an appointment with a general practitioner to have that looked at. He said he didn't think it was cancer, but he felt it was important to cut it out and have it examined to make sure. Hence the stitches in my neck. I haven't got the results of that examination yet, either. I think you were wrong to suggest that I was being too much of a worry-wart about health problems. There are many health problems that are easily cured if caught early, but become serious if neglected. Skin cancer is a good example. Most skin cancers are easily cured if they are cut out at an early stage, but they can become serious if neglected.

You asked what to do with the stuff in the foot-locker. As for the mathematical reprints, as I've told you before, if you'd like to keep them there, that would suit me best, as I am short on storage space. But if you want to get rid of them, please send them to me rather than throwing them out. The Saturday Review piece you can throw out if you don't want to save it, as a copy of that would be obtained in any fair-sized library. Any "achievement medals" can be thrown out.

But please send me the other 2 Harvard year books, and any letters of mine that are more than 20 years old. Unless you want to keep them yourself.

As for other stuff, it's hard for me to tell what I'd want without actually going through it. It would suit me best if you just kept it all there in storage. To get rid of it.

—Ted
